

Lee Pope Bio

Lee Pope is Open Records Counsel in the Tennessee Comptroller's Office of Open Records Counsel. Lee provides guidance and advice to Tennessee citizens and public officials regarding Tennessee's open meetings and open records laws. Additionally, he promotes awareness of Tennessee's public records and open meeting laws by performing presentations, issues advisory opinions, and mediates open records disputes.

Lee joined the Comptroller's Office after serving as assistant director and General Counsel for the Tennessee Emergency Communications Board. He also worked as an Assistant Attorney General in the Tennessee Attorney General's Office. Prior to his career in state government, he practiced insurance defense and represented government entities in the Law Office of Harvey & Silvus in Clarksville.

Lee is a graduate of the University of Tennessee in Knoxville. He received his law degree from Cleveland State University's Cleveland-Marshall College of Law. Lee is currently a candidate for a Master of Business Administration from Tennessee Technological University.

Lee is certified as a Rule 31 mediator and is a member of the Tennessee and Nashville Bar Associations. In his spare time, Lee volunteers his time with various nonprofit organizations. He enjoys home renovation projects, running, enjoying the outdoors, and fostering rescue dogs.